Nidal Khalifeh has a +15 years of experience in technology enabled solutions. The experience is extended to designing & building both hardware and software solutions. Moreover, Nidal Khalifeh is an entrepreneur who built "made in Jordan" hardware and software that is currently selling in MENA. Nidal is a consultant and trainer for different technology companies and NGOs and works closely with technology startups to help them scale and succeed.

Nidal Khalifeh is CEO for several technology companies such as AKTCO & SAFA, and Nidal holds several degrees and certificates in entrepreneurship and technology. Nidal holds a Bachelor degree from McGill University in Management Information Systems and a Masters of Arts in Enterprise Management degree from Durham University. Furthermore, Nidal also holds a Masters degree in Educational Technology from University of British Columbia along with a number of certificates in technology related fields such as CTS from AVIXA and CAEL from Harvard.

Examples of Nidal's work is building touch-enabled technology in 2008 in Jordan and successfully selling it in MENA until today with several iterations to keep up with the changing needs of the market. He also worked with Google to open the Jordanian market for Chromebooks hardware and software. Moreover, Nidal built software solutions such as KALBOARD360, G-reporting, and EDaura as cloud technology management systems.

Nidal provides consultation services in the technology space to build innovative environments for startups. Today Nidal is leading the Edtech, Green, and Social projects for MyStartup (FNF, Injaz, and ISSF). Nidal is a speaker in different technology related events & shows in MENA and produced a TEDx talk in 2020.
